Georgian readers were fascinated by dark tales of Gothic horror, populated by virtuous heroines and impossibly handsome heroes. Jane Austen was no exception – she read everything she could lay her hands on – but unlike many novel writers of the time, she chose not to conform to the conventions of this literary genre. The heroine of Northanger Abbey is neither accomplished nor beautiful, nor is the hero a paragon of chivalry or noble suffering. As an avid consumer of 'horrid' novels, Catherine Morland has to find out for herself that real life is often more disturbing than fiction.

Enneagram Part 2

Helen English
Monday 19 - Wednesday 21 June
Residential - £508 Non Residential - £392
Please arrive by 10am, course ends at 4pm

This is a Part 2 Workshop so you will have already done one or more Enneagram foundation workshops.

This workshop is about The Enneagram as a living, moving map and the power of human instinct. A powerful and primary urge for survival drives each and every one of us moment by moment, day by day, year on year. For the most part, it is unconscious, yet it constantly determines where our energy and attention goes. Have you wondered why despite good intentions you never quite focus on what really matters? Why your vital energy for life and the things you most value, seems constantly to drain away? Enneagram wisdom suggests instinct-driven patterns of thinking, feeling, sensing and being. When out of awareness, this seriously limits our potential. But awareness can change everything.

Don't forget Jamal! – Zoom

Tuesday 20 June
2pm - 3pm
Donations for Jamal

Jamal, a refugee from Afghanistan, took a perilous journey from Iran in 2013 and arrived safely in Indonesia. He had hoped to go onto Australia but the boats had been stopped. Jamal was given refugee status in 2014 and since then he has been waiting to be accepted by a country who will offer him sanctuary. Indonesia is not signed up to the UN convention for refugees, so Jamal cannot study, work or own property. Refugees are expected to wait until they are relocated. Jamal has been waiting for 10 years.

Ammerdown first zoomed Jamal in 2021.

Join us as we hear about Jamal's story.

50th Anniversary Art Exhibition On Hospitality, Peace and Reconciliation

Open 1 June – 31 July
(at certain times)

I asked a question... It's lovely to see exhibitions at Ammerdown, but what about an exhibition reflecting Ammerdown's Core Values?

So as a volunteer, I found myself curating one...

HOSPITALITY, PEACE, RECONCILIATION

Ammerdown believes in a shared world, where diversity and different identities are cherished, where all can live free from the fear of violence and abuse, with dignity and respect, and where differences and conflicts are transformed peacefully.

This is what a group of local artists have come to reflect on, following a call-out to Frome and other artists via social media and Make Art. Including painting, collage, and 3D work, from 'nest boxes' to ceramics, you will also find digital art and music.

The individual artists share a wish to communicate about the plight of creation and refugees, and the desire to build peace and communication within an increasingly fractured world. This exhibition seeks to reflect Ammerdown's values and to communicate this in a host of different ways, approaches and media.
